Abstract

This article explores the essence of Uzbekistan's policy aimed at enhancing the socio-spiritual development of its youth. It focuses on providing comprehensive support to young people, safeguarding their rights and freedoms, and strengthening their ideological resilience against harmful influences. These measures reflect the state's commitment to fostering a positive and secure environment for the younger generation.

Keywords: Vertical system, spiritual environment, non-organized youth, youth state policy, "Concept of continuous spiritual education", Mass culture.

Introduction

Today, modern, new forms of information and pedagogical technologies have been introduced in young people to form a firm position against attacks under the guise of "popular culture", religious extremism, international terrorism, and the "export" of ideas and values alien to our nation [1-4]. Naturally, in this regard, it is important to widely promote and promote the high masterpieces of real works of art against the low-level, light-hearted examples of "popular culture" [5-8]. It is known that the power and level of development of a particular country depends on the intellectual ability, knowledge and skills of its citizens. Only a country with mature and well-rounded personnel, meeting the requirements of the times, will develop [8-12]. Therefore, since the first days of our independence, special attention has been paid to the training of highly qualified national personnel with a new worldview. is in the center of attention of the management.

Materials and Methods

Today's demand for every pedagogue is to increase the spiritual maturity of young people, to form religious tolerance (tolerance), political-legal, environmental knowledge and culture, ideological immunity and ideological combativeness, to create a healthy spiritual and social-psychological outlook, a healthy lifestyle, promoting and instilling in them physical culture, moral standards, meeting high spiritual and moral requirements [13-15], correctly understanding the internal and external policy of the state, patriotic and people-loving, initiative and entrepreneur, armed with modern knowledge and having high human qualities, to prepare the faith whole and awake the conscience, to protect against the evils of human trafficking, various other deadly threats and religious extremist influences that are foreign to us, from the attacks of "mass culture", and to prevent any actions aimed at promoting violence, indecency and cruelty in society. is to get Currently, large-scale work is being carried out on the prevention of crimes such as crime, drug addiction, religious fanaticism, human trafficking, various performances, shows and broadcasts, feature and documentary films are being prepared in the mass media [16-19]. The main goal is to raise a generation that has its own opinion, worldview, strong faith, is physically and mentally fit, and can fight against various political crises and vices.

Drug addiction is one of the vices that negatively affects the development of society, people's comfortable and peaceful life, and the consistent improvement of the reform process. Despite the fact that all the developed countries of the world are fighting against this disease, the number of people addicted to drugs is increasing, drug addiction is accompanied by incurable diseases - AIDS-AIDS, lung cancer, infertility, and worst of all, these diseases prevent the birth, upbringing and has an extremely negative impact on the process of becoming an adult [20-24]. Drug addiction worries the peoples of the world as one of the most dangerous and serious consequences for humanity, as a result of which people commit murder, robbery, robbery, theft, fraud and other serious crimes, even to the point of killing their parents, siblings and other relatives. it is observed that the family will fail, children will be born with disabilities, people will turn away from their parents, relatives and friends, they will lose their memory, they won't be interested in anything, they will commit to immorality, immorality, and human trafficking [25-29]. Drug addiction is also dangerous because it causes the spread of many infectious diseases, such as AIDS (human immunodeficiency syndrome), hepatitis, tuberculosis, and wounds. In European and Asian countries, there are about 14 million drug addicts, and about 2 million of them are infected with AIDS. In addition, thousands of people die every year as a direct result of drug use. In the USA, one of the most developed countries in the world, more than 14,000 people die every year from poisoning. The French scientist Demma observed 10 families consuming ogu for 28 years. Unfortunately, 90% of children in these households are born with disabilities [30-34]. According to the World Health Organization (WHO) and the United Nations Program on HIV/AIDS, more than 35 million people in the world are currently infected with the human immunodeficiency virus. Every day, nearly 7 thousand people, including children, become victims of the plague of the 21st century. This means the need to take practical measures to combat this disease. It is the need of the hour to increase awareness and vigilance in line with the reforms implemented in our country, the achievements in various fields, the work being done in the way of education of the young generation, which is considered an important link of the society, the solution of some emerging problems, and creative work.

Conclusions

Today, the conditions created for religion, religious organizations and political parties at the national level, their functioning within the framework of the existing legislation, false believers and their true purpose, the negative influence of these "religionists" on our spiritual and economic life, fanaticism and the teachings of pure believers, some advanced With the help of the investment of the states, in order to reveal the contributions of missionaries promoting other religions, to protect the young generation from falling under the negative influence of various political and religious currents, and to improve the health of our spiritual and material life, consistent and well-thought-out activities are being carried out with the efforts of our President Sh. Mirziyoyev. I think that every coach-pedagogue working in our country should be able to feel that he has a place in this process and how high his civic responsibility is.
